In theory it is the perfect companion to touring Lisbon by foot, tram and subway. Given that this is exactly how I used it, I have to report that the 2012 edition turned up to be deficient in two remarkable instances which (for me at least) calls its overall reliability into question. First, the 2012 edition doesn't show the Red Line subway going to the airport. At first blush, this is understandable since the airport subway station only opened in July 2012. However, the map includes a legend for subway lines under construction (a broken red line) but doesn't even show that the line to airport was under construction. Given that subway construction is measured in years and not months, this is a pretty big omission. Second, on the blow-up map the red line between Alameda and Sao Sebastio is simply omitted (while on the less detailed map this section of the line is shown). Lisbon isn't Tokyo-- there are only four subway lines in Lisbon and these sorts of omissions can only be attributed to careless and sloppy editing. Not a good sign at all.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. This is a very useful, laminated map that helps you get around the ...By StevenThis is a very useful, laminated map that helps you get around the labyrinth of streets in the center of Naples. This map also includes smaller maps of Pompeii and Sorrento, and a larger map of the bay of Naples and the Amalfi coast. I would not have been able to see as much as I did, as easily as I did during my five days in Naples if I hadn't had this map. I believe, however, that the map needs to be updated: several stops on the subway lines, especially Linea 1, are not indicated on the map (e.g. Toledo and Municipio); furthermore, the map gives the impression that this subway line ends at Universita' when instead it continues to Piazza Garibaldi, where the main train station and bus terminals are located. Since the easiest way to get around Naples is on the subway lines, it would be helpful if all the stops were included on the map.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. The least useful Streetwise map I've boughtBy Nicole PellegriniThis map tries to cover too much of the region and ends up being pretty much useless for any of them. I've always bought and loved Streetwise maps before (for Rome, Venice, London and other cities) so I thought I would feel the same about this one--not so. It's poorly laid out, as others have mentioned, meaning you're constantly flipping from one panel to the next trying to figure out where you are. There's also not nearly enough detail in the historic center to make it handy for navigating around small streets and finding things. I ended up tearing out a much better street map from one of my guidebooks and using that far more often. All in all a disappointment; I left it behind at my BB hoping that maybe someone else in the future will get better use from it.

Streetwise Lisbon Map - Laminated City Center Street Map of Lisbon, Portugal - Folding pocket size travel map with integrated surface tram metro stationsThis map covers the following areas:Main Lisbon Map 1:8,000Belem Inset Map 1:8,000Central Lisbon North Map 1:8,000Lisbon Area Map 1:46,000Lisbon Regional Map 1:340,000Portugal Map 1:3,000,000Lisbon, benefiting from an influx of funding from the EU, has reemerged on the world stage as a destination for those seeking the cultural experience of Southern Europe. While it still has a patina of wear and retains an air of shabby chic, renovation and new development are mixing the past with the present to create an alluring juxtaposition of hip boutique hotels in old medieval quarters.The magnificent Praça do Commercial by the river Tejo is the center of the city and reflects the atmosphere of this historic maritime center. Heading east, you'll walk through the Alfama with its Moorish past, and up the rising hillside to the dominating presence of the castle of St. George. The pastel houses of the Bairro Alto line up like sunwashed Easter eggs. There's a terrific panoramic view from the park on Rua de San Pedro that shouldn't be missed. Additional must see visits are to the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, with one of the best art collections in Europe, and to Bélem to see the Cultural Centre, and the Mosteiro dos Jerónimos, the monastery commemorating Portugal's seagoing superiority.Take the metro D line or a taxi up to the Parque das Nações, home of Expo 98 and now a splendid outdoor vista with shops, restaurants and one of the most stunning Aquariums on earth, the Oceanarium.The STREETWISE® Lisbon map, including the Lisbon Area map, pulls all of these sites plus hotels, and metro stations together to help you navigate and enjoy your visit to Lisbon. The Lisbon Region map will guide you on day trips west of the city along the beautiful Costa Estoril to Cascais, Estoril and Sintra. 'Don't leave home without STREETWISE.' --The New York Times 'STREETWISE is an absolute travel essential.' --Travel + Leisure Magazine About the Author STREETWISE® is the first map to be designed with modern graphics and is the originator of the laminated, accordion-fold map format. We've set the standard that every map company has imitated but never duplicated. Our mission is to make you feel comfortable, to make you feel safe in a place where you've never been before and to enable you to experience a familiar place more fully. The company was founded in 1984 by Michael Brown, who had been in international publishing for many years, setting up subsidiaries for textbook publishers. In the 1970s, Brown traveled extensively throughout Africa, India, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. Brown would take a large paper map, cut out the city center, folded it up and slip it into his pocket, thus preventing him from looking like a tourist in areas where discretion is the better part of travel. This was his tool for surviving. After many years on the road, Brown settled back in New York and decided to start his own business, based on the adaptations he had made to maps in his travels. His goal was to give someone the ability to navigate easily in unfamiliar terrain. He started with a new map format: the accordion fold. Such a simple idea, but at the time it was revolutionary. No more struggling to fold an awkward, oversized paper map. This new format would enable the user to blend in like a native, instead of stick out like a tourist. Brown then added lamination to ensure that the map would be a lasting tool. More important than the format was the design of the map itself. It had to be a map that not only succeeded above and beyond any map he had used, but was esthetically appealing as well. The look of it had to be as striking as the functionality. Color was introduced in a way that was never seen before in a map - vivid purple for water, soothing gray for the background of street grids, gold to highlight elements of the map. Clarity, conciseness and convenience in a very stylish package. Building the business was a 24 hour job. Brown sold the maps during the day, zipping around Manhattan making deliveries on his Harley Davidson. At night he packed the orders and did the design work. More titles were added, each title requiring months of research and design. Today, STREETWISE® produces over 130 titles for major destinations, regions and countries throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, Australia, Europe, the United Kingdom and Asia. We have grown from the back of a motorcycle to selling millions of maps around the world. Yet each title is still painstakingly researched and updated. STREETWISE® is one of the only, if not THE only map company that conducts research by walking or driving an area to ensure accuracy. After all, what good is the map if what you hold in your hands doesn't match what you see on the street sign? This lengthy fact checking results in superior accuracy; in effect, we've done the work, now you have the adventure. In the end, it's not about the map, it's about getting out and finding your own authentic experience wherever you go. It's about being in a city or a region and discovering things that you never thought you would find. You can do this if you have confidence and you have confidence if you have a great map. STREETWISE® is the great map that you need.
