Streetwise Maps : Streetwise Rome (Streetwise) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Streetwise Rome (Streetwise):

Never Be Lost and FriendshipBy Robert DuncansonI have praised Streetwise Maps elsewhere and promised I would not repeat any praises.I am writing this review because I just saw this map and it brought back good memories.Next to a GPS and the business card from the hotel where you are staying, this map is a godsend.Mark where your hotel is and light out.This map folds to a convenient size and does not turn into a sail when it is opened.The what's happening this week guides leave holes in orienting you. The maps given out by the hotel are generally tissue thin and shred on first use.Streetwise maps will last for future returns or for loaning to friends who are off to where you once were.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Touring Rome!By CCIt was okay...there were better paper ones we got for free.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. I love the fact that major attractions are easy to find.

About the Author
STREETWISE Maps, Inc. was founded in 1984 by Michael E. Brown. Before starting the company, he worked in international publishing and acquired a fascination for maps. In 1983 Brown envisioned a new format for a map; one which integrated convenience and modern graphics. He wanted to create a map that would not only visually entice someone to visit a particular city, but reward them as well with exceptional clarity, accuracy, and durability. By making the map as aesthetically pleasing as it was functional, Brown combined his sense of design with his love of travel. The result was an innovative consumer product. In the early years, Brown was not only cartographer and publisher, but shipping manager as well, delivering the maps around the streets of New York on a Harley Davidson motorcycle. STREETWISE Maps, Inc. eventually expanded into publishing maps of cities throughout the world.
